STATEMENT OF REY, R. M., CHARASS, C., June 21, 1880.

The Stelft Specific Company:

Dear Sirs.—About four years ago I was attacked with what the physicians pronounced Neuralgic Rheamatism, accompanied with Erysipolae. My appetite falled me entirely, and I had an intermitting pulse and very irregular pulsations of the heart. A terrible pain soon came into my chest and shoulders, and I became so helpiess that I could attend to no business at all. The pains were moveable, and would sometimes pass from one part of my hody to another. Finally the erysipelas broke out on my left hand and arm and produced much swelling. I was afflicted for eighteen months, and of course used a great many kinds of medicine, but nothing gave me relief. Friends finally persuaded me totry Swift's Specific, which I did. I noticed a decided improvement while taking the first bottle, and continued its use until I had taken about one dozen, when I found myself entirely recovered, with no sign of the disease left except a stiffness in my hand, resulting from erysipolate. While taking the medicine I gained on an quorant such a strength of the disease left except a stiffness in my hand, resulting from erysipolate. While taking the medicine I gained on an quorant system of the disease left except a stiffness in my hand, resulting from erysipolate. While taking the medicine I gained on an quorant system of the disease left except a stiffness in my hand, resulting from erysipolate. Wr. J. E. McAllister, Manchester, Va.:

FITZHUGH LEE. CAREER OF AN ENGINEER. After a selection by the choir Rev. William H. Christian, of the Central Methodist church, Manchester, was introduced, and he delivered a eulogy upon the career of an engineer. Mr. Christian, after speaking of the important and responsible position held by locomotive engineers, who hold the lever upon which hangs the threads of innumerable multitudes of human lives, and his pleasure at being present, said :

and his pleasure at being present, said:

The lesson which I would impress upon you is taken from one of Paul's letters to the Church at Corinth, and is in these words: "So run that you may obtain."

Faul could not have used language more appropriate to you if he had been addressing you himself at this bour. For you are runners. You are engineers. Your business is to run. Each one of you has his run. You run in storm and sunshine—in the day and in the night—in the blaning heat of sumer and amid the blighing snows of winter. Others may slumber and sleep, but you must be on the alert, and hold and govern your flying engine on the shining track. What more appropriate than to admonish you so to run that you may obtain? So improve your time, talents, and opportunities as to make the most of yourselves. "Covet carnestly the best gift, so that you may measure up to the highest standard of humas excellence, and more upon the loftics: plains attainable by mortals this side of etenity."

Continuing, Mr. Christian spoke of Continuing, Mr. Christian spoke of the brevity of life and said : May I not appropriately admonish you "so to run that you may obtain"; so to improve your time and journey that you may obtain "an inheritance incorruptible, undealed, and hat fadeth not away."

your time and fourney that you may obtain that fadeth not away."

As engineers fou seek the best track, you desire the best road-bed, the best lifts, the best ralls, and the latest improvements in every particular. So in life, seek the best governing system of your conduct and character. And is not the pathway of God's commandments the best course in which a man can turn his footsteps? Obedience to Eible teachings makes the best fathers, the best children, the best masters, the best enhidren, the best masters, the best exployers, and the best currents of the pathway in the state of the pathway in life, and that is the way of God's commandments—opedience to Christian principles.

Many an engineer has a happy home and loving friends at the ead of their run. Their wives and children throw to them oving kisses as they leave for duty and wait to welcome their return with demonstrations of delight. So at the end of life's journey are there not inviting prospects to him who has faithfully improved life's purpey are there not inviting prospects to him who has faithfully improved life's purpey are there not inviting prospects to him who has faithfully improved life's purpey are there not inviting prospects to him who has faithfully improved life's purpey are there not inviting prospects to him to Abraham's bosom. Christians Evans, when about to die, turned to his friends and said, "Good-bye," and looking upward, said, "Drive on, drive on, ye charloteers of lieaven, and bear ing disembodied spirit home to God." Have you no friend walting on eternity's shore to welcome you the land of the blest? Bid not some After referring to the great good that had been accomplished by the brother-hood from a beneficial standpoint, he described the fundamental principles of next introduced, and after some introductory remarks said:

There are but few men of any intelligence who have not some information and ideas as to the development and desires of labor organizations. It is a question about which the press, in newspapers, pamphlets, and books besigned to much information for hardly any man to remain totally ignorant. Instead of such organizations being "un-American" I think they are needed more in a republican form of government than elsewhere. Young men are subject to less restraint and enjoy so much more freedom under sich a form of government than under a wonarchical form. The bast restraint to which they can be subjected is to be found in their organizations, where they are brought into contact with the older and more prudent members of their lines of business. I regard that labor organizations have settled one thing—viz. that hereafter the employers alone shall not determine the question of the value of labor; that the employees will have a voice in the settlement of that question. But they have yet another question to settle far more difficult—vix. what shall be the basis upon which eaplial and alors shall work together? The solution of this problem will require patience, prudence, where they are subject to their lines of the settled. For that settlement one shall look to those men whose lives and duties call for the display of courage, prudence, and foresight. To men of your organization, whose duties delity require she exercise of such vitues, and whose reputation is for conservatism and a due regard for the rights of chers, we may hopefully look for a solution based upon justice, and not wild and unreasonable demands.

MORAL INFLUENCE.

MOBAL INFLUENCE.

The last address of the evening was one by Chaplain Everett on the "Moral Influence of the Brotherhood." He said that in the past twenty years there had been a marked improvement in the moral standing of the engineers, which is greatly due to the organization. SUNDAY SERVICES.

Notes of Church Affairs Here in Richmond, &c.

Sunday was a rare and radiant spring day. It was warm, dry, bright, fresh, and invigorating; just the day for new bonnets, joyous Easter music, and songs of praise. It was the resurrection of nature after a winter's slumber; a buoyant break from the penitential season into the gladness of the days of the risen Lord. The services in the were large. It is not probable that the city of Richmond ever sent more people to worship than on Sunday morning, and everywhere the services were marked by unusual sweetness.

The following summarizes the reports of Sunday's services, especial churches of which no mention was made in Sunday's issue :

At the morning service a collection of silver was taken up for a solid silver communion service. The setmons were in harmony with the joyous church festival of Easter. The congregations filled the house at both services.

OTHER METHODIST CHURCHES.

The Methodist churches are beginning to adopt the heautiful custom of decorating churches and silters with flowers on Easter. The pulpit at Broad-Street on Sanday morning was crowded with potted plants, overarched with the motto "He is Risen." The service was mostly of song, and was splendidly rendered.

The object of the meeting having been explained by the chair, Mr. A. H. Christian, Jr., offered the following:

Resolved, That a delegation of three members from the Chamber be appointed by the Chair to appear before the luter-State Commerce Commission at Atlanta on April 25th, and to present an argument in favor of making the suspension of the thaneston of the inter-State commerce bill permanent as regards the roads and territory affected by the temporary order as now existing.

REMARKS AND MOTIONS.

Brief remarks in favor of the rusolution were made by Mr. Williams, Mr. Ellett, and Mr. Blankenship.

On motion of Mr. Cringon, the rule requiring the reference of the resolution to a committee was suspended, and the resolution was adopted.

Christian was made a member of the committee; and, on motion of Mr. A. H. Christian, Jr., the committee was enlarged from three to four.

The Chair then appointed the following: Messis. A. H. Christian, Blankenship, and Ellett. Judge Christian is the fourth member. At the suggestion of Mr. Christian Mr. Elankenship was made chairman.

THE GREAT ATONEWENT.

At the First Presbyterian church Rev. George D. Armstrong, D. D., of Norfolk, Va., preached to a full bouse at 11 A. M. His sermon was upon the "Great Atenement," based upon 1.
John I., 7, "The blood of Jesus Christ, Illa Son, cleanseth us from all sin," and was one of rare power and unction. At the communian service following twenty-six new members were admitted to the church—fourteen by certificate from other churches, and twelve upon profession of futh, nearly all of the latter being from the Sunday school.

At night Br. Armstrong preached again to a large audience, from H. Corinthians vi. 2, " Hehold now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation," enforcing most tenderly the danger of delay in the matter of personal religion.

TRAMWAY. The Committee on Streets recom-mended that S. H. Hawes be permitted to build a suspension tramway, twenty-eight feet high, to enable him to un-load coal from vessels into his coal-yard. DOCK STREET.

The Committee on Streets recommended the rejection of the ordinance offered by Mr. Snead, providing for widening Dock street from Twenty-eighth to Ash street, so as to enable the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company to extend its track in a parallel line with the street curbing.

On motion of Mr. Snead, the ordinance was recommitted to the committee for further consideration.

. TEACHERS' PAY.

The Committee on Finance reported on the ordinance providing that the pay of the public-school teachers be restored to what it formerly was that it was out of the committee's province to increase

On motion of Mr. Page, the ordinance was recommitted for the committee to report how the desired end could be accomplished.

The Mayor's veto of the ordinance allowing the Richmond and Danville railroad to extend its track down Dock street and into the property of B. F. and Thomas Clyde, steamshipmen, was read; after which was also read the letter from General Williams C. Wichen with the control of the C. Wickham, vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, protesting against the granting of the privilege to the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company, on the ground that the same had been granted the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company by ordinance in 1871, and he said they desired to make use of the privilege at the proper time.

The Common Council passed the or-dinance over the Mayor's veto at its last meeting, and the Board concurred in the Council's action by the follow-ing yets.

CHARLESTON, S. C., April 7, 1887.

Dear Sirs,—It is remembered with gratification that when the body of Mr. Cathoun was on the way from Washington to Charleston your city paid special honor to his remains.

After more than a third of a century the association then formed for the purpose has completed the monument to Mr. Cathoun.

As a slight recognition of what was then and is now highly esteemed by the people of this State, the ladies association begs that you will accept the enclosed invitation to be present a the unveiling of the monument on the 26th in stant.

Very respectfully.

Chairman Committee. CHARLESTON, S. C., April 7, 1887

The clerk was instructed to make proper acknowledgement of the receipt f the invitation.

Mr. Crenshaw arose to correct a statement which had been made on the floor at the last meeting. That statement was that only vessels drawing eight or ten feet of water or less could come to the port of Richmond. He desired to say that a day or two ago a vessel drawing sixteen feet of water he Mr. Dickerson : "Did it come in at

The ordinance increasing the salary of the City Attorney from $1,500 to $2,250 per year (which ordinance had been adopted by the Common Council) was taken up and concurred in.

OFFICERS OF THE CITY. Mr. Murphy offered an ordinance

MINORS.

MINORS.

The ordinance prescribing that any minor who obtains liquor in any place where liquor is sold shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished accordingly, was taken up.

The subject produced general discussion among the members, and Mr. Witt, Commonwealth's attorney, who was present, addressed the Board, on invitation, concerning it.

Mr. Witt urged the passage of the ordinance. He thought such a law would put the strongest possible impediment in the way of the sale of liquor to minors. As soon as a boy knews that he will be punished for buying liquor he will stay away from liquor-saloons.

Mr. Witt said he had always believed that if the frequenters of faro-banks were punished equally with the keepers such places could be more easily broken up, and this ordinance would work similarly.

Mr. Page offered several perfecting amendments, which were agreed to in by the following vote:

AYES.—Mesers, Adams, Bahen, Bland, Chappell, Crenshaw, Crump, Hargrove, Murphy, Orley, Page, and Bass—II.

stances attending the occasion were most favorable. This was called a "union meeting of Richmond Division No. 26," but was really a fraternal re-union intended for all members of the organization who could make it conve-nient to come and who desired to do so.

The Theetre was packed from pit to dome, and the side aisles were filled with persons standing. The orchestra was occupied by members of the bro-therhood and the parquet by their wives, daughters, and lady friends. The majority of the visiting members— 587 in number, representing seven States and saveteen divisions and States and seventeen divisions—and many ladies and interested spectators occupied the dress circle. Two special trains arrived in the morning—one bringing the men from New York, Philadelphia, and Paltimore, and the other those from Norfolk. The audience was a magnificent one to look upon, embracing, as it did, much of the real manhood and intelligence of our country. The members of Richmond Division, No. 26, together with some of their visiting brethren, members of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brother-hood of Locomotive Firemen, to the number of abeut 250, met at Thon's Hall at 130 o'clock, and, headed by Guide D. M. Wiltshire and Chief T. M.

Coffee, marched from the division's odge-room there up Main, Ninth, and Broad streets to the Theatre. Broad streets to the Theatre.

THE CHOIR.

There was on the stage a choir of about forty voices, which discoursed sweet music, alternating with the speeches. The scenery was very prettily arranged, the background representing a forest in rich foliage. Just in front of the speakers, invited guests, and choir was suspended a very hands some and attractive cross bearing the inscription of the order. The stage front was decorated with potted plants.

Will never have any strikes. [Loud applause.]

"Now you come to the policy of the brotherhood in dealing with disputes. You know that disputes will arise. Just as leng as there is capital and labor in this country just so long differences will arise, and the great problem of to-day is, How shall we settle them? How shall we solve that problem? There is only one true way, and it is in the language of St. Paul, 'Come sit down, and let us reason together.' [Applause.] front was decorated with potted plants and blooming flawers and on the prano in the orchestra was the model of an engine, the tender of which was filled

At 2 o'clock, after singing by the choir, Mr. A. J. Schevers, representa-tive of the American Brake Company, and a member of Division 23, of Spring field, Ill., who had been chosen by Kichmond Division to preside, called the meeting to order and said:

Chief Arthur's Speech. When Captain Bass concluded President Schevers introduced Mr. P. M. Arthur, the grand chief engineer of the Lecomotive Brotherhood of the United States and Canada. Mr. Arthur is a man who has passed middle age. He has a fine, manly, cheerful face and could easily pass for a minister of the Cospel. In beginning his remarks he expressed delight at being permitted to appear before so large an audience in the city of Richmond, and called atto the fact that this was the first "union meeting" ever held by the locomotive brotherhood in Richmond. In explaining why Sun-day was selected as the day for the meeting, he said: "Owing to their pecu-lier receition our men are unable to liar vocation our men are unable come together any other day of the week. I can say truly that I labored for years with our brotherhood to abolish their meetings on the Sabbath day, but found it an impossibility-that is if we abolished having them on Sunday we would have to give them up alto-gether. Hence we have decided here gether. Hence we have decided here and there in the different parts of the country to hold our union meetings and bring together our members and give them, as well as the grand chief, an opportunity of interchanging views and opinions touching those questions that affect the public weal as well as their own. We are here to-day in that capacity. No business is transacted at these meetings. I can safely say that when you leave here you will have heard just as good a ser-

you will have heard just as good a ser-mon, though it may have come from a layman, as you could have heard in many of our churches. [Laughter.] The text we offer is 'Do unto others as you would wish them to do unto you.'" Mr. Arthur then carefully reviewed the history of the organization, called attention to the fact that the first division was formed in the city of Detroit twenty-four years ago, and then pro-ceeded to show how the organization has grown in a moral and intellectual point of view. He spoke of the magazine published by the brotherhood, and said that it now has a circulation of PRINCIPLES OF THE PROTHERHOOD.

MOTTORS OF THE ORDER.

Rev.W. P. Wright, pastor of LaurelStreet Methodist church, delivered a lecture upon the mottoes of the order.

ME. MERROITH.
City-Attorney C. V. Meredith was next introduced, and after some introductory remarks said:

others belonging to our organization that the greatest mistake is widening this gap instead of striving to close it up." [Continued applause.] And here he added: "Capital has rights as well as labor [applause] that we are bound to respect; and while we claim the right to quit work if we do not like the way we are treated, we have no right to prevent another from working who is willing to take our place. [Loud applause.] Just as soon as labor organizations depart from the fundamental principle set forth in the Christian religion they pave the way to their own destruction." [Renewed applause.]

HIS PERIORATION.

In conclusion he said: "Remember, my friends, that it is not the wealth a man possesses, nor the clothes that he work that make athe man—it is character.
